“ It breaks my heart to hear of Bev's passing, even though I knew it was coming. I called and talked with her after hearing and there was no clue that she was nearing the end. She reminded me of her mom and the story I tell of her so often. When she lay in the hospital bed dying, I visited her daily. I was just sixteen then and she was so special to me. She always gave me a happy face with not the slightest clue she was suffering. She died within a few hours of my last visit and left me with a character lesson that has been a huge influence in my life. I loved her so and thought she was the smartest and strongest woman alive. I can see her in all of the Coderre woman. I am thankful that we had linkage back then but do wish our lives were closer over the many years. Bev made an impact on me that has never left. her true warmth showed on every visit at every time. Loved her.

My deepest sympathies to Warren and the entire family.
