“ Mike was our hero. He did not lament his ailments and enjoyed meeting and helping other people. He was a regular at the Church services and loved his trains.

“ Mike was an amazing person as a child and as an adult. He was born with serious medical issues and developed more problems as an adult. Never did he complain about his situation, and he readily accepted the pain that often accompanied his treatments. He would tell the nurse, "Do what you got to do" and would grit his teeth.

His thoughts were about other people in the health facilities where he resided. He was made an honorary deputy for his quick action when he spotted a resident leaving the facility who was not permitted to go alone. His action alerting the staff helped avoid possible harm for the resident.

As a child and later as an adult, he loved trains. He read lots of books on trains and enjoyed talking about the old steam engines. His wheelchair carried the sign, "This vehicle stops at all RR Crossings".

Mike was our hero. He taught us to deal with what you have and not to stress about what might have been!
